SAM Obtains ISO 14001 Certification

– Accelerating the Enhancement of Environmental Management Across the Sanden Group –

Sanden Air Conditioning (M) Sdn. Bhd. (hereinafter “SAM”), the Malaysia-based subsidiary of Sanden Corporation (Head Office: Iseaki City, Gunma Prefecture) obtained ISO 14001:2015 certification (Environmental Management System) at the end of December 2025 from the third-party certification body Kiwa International Certifications (M) Sdn. Bhd.

ISO 14001 is an international standard that evaluates whether a company has appropriately established and is operating a system for reducing environmental impact, ensuring legal compliance, and driving continuous improvement.

With this certification, the Sanden Group’s overall environmental management has been further strengthened, and the environmental responsiveness of SAM—one of the Group’s key bases in Asia—has now been validated against international standards. As a result, the overall ISO 14001 certification rate across the Group has reached approximately 95%. This achievement also enhances the company’s ability to provide higher quality and greater assurance to customers through improved compliance with environmental regulations and increased reliability of the supply chain.

SAM has consistently worked to reduce environmental impact and ensure compliance with relevant laws and regulations. Against the backdrop of rising environmental awareness and internal initiatives to enhance employee awareness, SAM has successfully obtained ISO certification.

The Sanden Group, under an environmental management system compliant with ISO 14001:2015 throughout the entire organization, continues to promote energy conservation, waste reduction, chemical substance management, and the effective utilization of water resources.

Moving forward, the Group will further strengthen its environmental management system, aim to achieve a 100% certification rate, and continue contributing to the realization of a sustainable society.
